

Marlon

Sofas / Design Collection

Marlon uses tufting across the back to give a traditional upholstery detail a more linear sofa form. The seat cushions stay comparatively plain, while raised metal feet separate the substantial body from the floor.

The textured back works as the main decorative surface. Pairing it with a simpler coffee table lets the tufting remain visible without adding another competing pattern directly in front of the seating.

Gently dust upholstered seams, edging and adjacent surfaces separately; keep cleaning liquid out of the seams.
