

Belts

Tables / Design Collection

The Belts table group makes the support a visible feature. Broad, curved elements meet beneath the top, with a buckle detail linking the table to the language of straps and fastening.

The base and buckle have covered or exposed finish choices, while back-lacquered glass and selected ceramic tops are listed by model. Different table heights can be composed around a sofa; the base deserves as much attention as the surface because it remains visible between the tables.

Care for the leather-covered base separately from the top; keep liquid from running onto the covering and base joints.

Use coasters and heat-resistant mats on the top; lift objects instead of dragging them and protect the edges from knocks.

Follow the care instructions for the selected top finish and identify its material before using a cleaner.
